'When Europe forgot its homework: Education in crisis': the ETUCE Film-documentary released

The ETUCE documentary 'When Europe forgot its homework: education in crisis' shows that cuts and downturns in the education systems have affected everyday people – teachers, students, parents, and societies – and made the prospects and opportunities for young people more unclear, jeopardizing the future of the younger generations. >>>

Coming up: Training seminar on Challenging the liberalisation of public services in TTIP and beyond

ETUCE is together with EPSU, AK and ÖGB organising a training seminar on trade policy on the 15-16 January in Vienna. The focus of the training will be on the current trade negotiations, in particular TTIP, CETA and TiSA and the EU's trade policy. We will discuss how to challenge the liberalisation of education and other public services and better understand the problems of trade agreements for public services. >>>
